Williams extend RBS deal

By Jonathan Noble

Tuesday, May 1st 2007, 08:27 GMT

Williams have extended their sponsorship deal with banking giants RBS for another three years.

The Grove-based team originally linked up with RBS at the start of 2005 and both parties have decided to renew their contract following a successful partnership.

Team boss Frank Williams said: "AT&T Williams are very privileged that our partnership with a brand of RBS's stature has been extended. It is a fruitful relationship that has developed and strengthened over the last two seasons and I look forward to it continuing successfully."

The RBS announcement is further good financial news for the Williams team, who are keen to bounce back from a disappointing 2006 campaign. They signed a title sponsorship deal with AT&T last year and also recently added a new contract with Air Asia.

RBS have also announced that Zara Phillips will join their RBS Global Ambassador programme to help support the F1 marketing drive.
